

New beginnings

The end of summer term is always full of hope and promise for new opportunities that lie ahead, sprinkled with a tinge of sadness as we prepare to say goodbye to special people in our lives. We are also delighted that we will be reunited with many familiar faces in September, from those children who will remain with us. The staff are supporting the children to label their emotions, prepare them for new places to learn and providing reassurance.

Your children have been immersed in some wonderful experiences during their time at Kingswood, making what we envisage as lifelong memories. Our Mud Day provided so much open ended learning- I do hope your washing machines have recovered! Your children are curious and creative learners, and they make every day at Kingswood one that is filled with joy and wonder. Be proud of them.

I would also like to say thank you for the welcome you have provided to me as new Headteacher. I understand that the face to face meetings and events have been more limited this year, but I have very much appreciated the interactions we have managed thus far.

Information in this newsletter includes a reminder of our events next week, and our parents survey, as well as information to support home learning during the summer.

Wishing you a safe and happy summer break with your family. Warm wishes,

Mrs Macdonald
